MANY HEARTS ONE BODY

RELIGION AND ART

One of the newest members of First Christian Church begins an eight-week Bible study this week based on her area of expertise. Dr. Francine Carraro is Director of the Wichita Falls Museum of Art at MSU. Beginning October 2 she will use contemporary and historic art to deepen discussion of the parables of Jesus and stories from the Old and New Testaments. Dr. Carraro's class is part of the "Many Hearts, One Body" fall rotation of Sunday School classes for adults. For a complete list of classes, visit the church website at www.firstchristianwf.com.

Dinner and the Movies:

A fundraiser benefitting the MSU Chancel Choir Fund

on Saturday, October 8th, at 6:30pm

Our Chancel Choir will be serving a delicious dinner of salad, marinated pork tenderloin, au gratin potatoes, green beans, desserts and drinks prepared by our own Cook family and friends. Entertainment will be provided by our own Chancel Choir members, including MSU students Sharon Mucker and Baylee Wichlan. Featured songs will be from some of your favorite movies.

Tickets are $20, and must be purchased in advance. Tickets are available in the church office or from any Chancel Choir member.

One of the ways our church reaches out to the MSU community is through our Chancel Choir. Jeanette Showalter contacts vocal music majors at MSU who would like to sing in our choir. Those students are paid a stipend to come to Wednesday rehearsals and to the 10:45 service on Sundays. Sharon Mucker has been in our choir for several years now, and she also plays in our bell choir. Baylee Wichlan is starting her second year of singing with us. These students not only contribute to our choir, but they in turn learn skills that they may use after graduation. They may someday serve a church as a director of music ministries. What a great legacy that would be for our church!

We depend on donations from the congregation and the choir to fund this project. The fundraising dinner will continue to fund this ministry or if you can't come to the dinner, please consider making a donation to the MSU Choir Fund. If you'd like more information or if you'd like to sponsor one of our singers for a month or a school year, please speak to Jeanette or call her at 781-5199.

Grow in Grace Choir for grades K-5 begins this Sunday, October 2, at 5pm in the Choir Room. This season we'll be singing hymns and choruses so our children will be familiar with the music of the church. We'll also be exploring music signs and symbols.

All children are invited to come this Sunday and...

THE WAYS WE VOTE

The Death of Decius Mus in Battle, by Rubens, 1618

“Interesting” is an all-purpose euphemism employed by polite people to describe someone or something perplexing, riveting or apocalyptically bad. Last Sunday evening, the participants in our Faith and Current Events seminar (“FACE Time with Dave”) pondered, with their usual thoughtfulness, some of the considerations that may impel the way people vote in this very interesting Presidential campaign.

1. Values vote: The candidate we vote for more fully shares our moral values and convictions than his or her opponent. These values may include consequential moral issues like peace, economic justice, freedom of religion and the sanctity of life.
2. Interests vote: The candidate we vote for may not share our values, but is likely to protect interests that are important to us. These can include things like the climate, jobs, Social Security and Second Amendment rights. To put the difference between values and interests in terms of international relationships, the United States and Canada share values and interests; the United States and Saudi Arabia share many interests but almost no values; the United States and North Korea share neither interests nor values.
3. The greater good vote: We consider both candidates decent and admirable. We believe that whoever is elected will serve faithfully, but we will vote for the greater of the two goods. To many at the time, the Presidential election of 2008 was a “greater good” election. One candidate was John McCain, an authentic war hero and a man of high honor, who had suffered more in the service of his country than any other living politician. The other was Barack Obama, whose intellect, eloquence and charisma seemed to herald a new era in American race relations.
4. The lesser of two evils vote: Both candidates are seriously lacking in the values we hold, or the interests we share, but we will vote for the one who we believe will represent the lesser evil. One thoughtful person asked, “But if we vote for the lesser of two evils, aren’t we still voting for evil?” Here, consideration of contingent issues becomes important. We are more likely to vote for “the lesser of two evils” if we believe that candidate will appoint federal judges or Supreme Court justices more likely to rule in favor of our values and interests. This is especially important given that there is a standing vacancy on the Supreme Court, and the three oldest serving Justices are 83, 80 and 78. It is highly possible that the winner of this year’s Presidential election will make four or more nominations, and if those nominations are approved by the Senate, the Court will have an ideological trajectory likely to endure for a generation.

5. The pietistic “I will not vote” choice: Both candidates are beyond the pale, and we choose only to vote for candidates running for lesser offices, or not to vote at all. This is a principled position, but if we take it, we cede the results to those who do vote.
6. The Vice-Presidential vote: We prefer the Vice-Presidential nominees to the Presidential ones, and thus vote on that basis. Of course, the Vice-Presidential candidate is attached to the Presidential candidate on the ballot, which brings to mind the classic philosophical position (best articulated by Thomas Aquinas) known as the “Double Effect.” For example, patients who are near death and receiving palliative care will have the amount of pain-killer they receive increased as their physical distress increases. While the increase in pain killer may hasten their passing, that is not the intent: the intent is to alleviate their suffering. If one votes on the basis of the Vice-Presidential nominees, the aim is not to get their running mates (whom we may detest) into the Oval Office, but to get their Vice-Presidents into the West Wing. The oldest person to ever assume the office of President was Ronald Reagan, who was 69 at his first inaugural. Mr. Trump is 70. If he is elected, he will become the oldest. Secretary Clinton is 68. If she is elected, she will be the second oldest. While that is not inherently disqualifying (we oldsters are generally healthier than we used to be), it does increase the significance of the person who will be a heartbeat away from the Presidency. In addition, both Presidential candidates have been accused by their opponents (and some neutral observers) of illegal behavior. It is certainly conceivable that the victor may, under Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution, be impeached by a majority of the House for “high crimes and misdemeanors,” and either resign or risk being convicted and removed by two-thirds of the Senate. All of which is to say that this year’s Vice-Presidential candidates have greater import than in previous elections.
7. The Fear Factor, aka The Flight 93 Choice: According to a blogger writing under the pseudonym “Publius Decius Mus” (an ancient Roman who single-handedly charged the enemy’s line, knowing he would definitely die) this is “the Flight 93 election.” The premise is that one of the candidates will definitely destroy the country, and the other probably will as well. Voting for the one who will not definitely destroy the country embraces the ethos of the heroic passengers who stormed the cockpit of Flight 93. They knew the plane would almost certainly crash, because none of them knew how to fly, but they refused to allow the despicable terrorist hijackers to determine their fate.

Before you vote, pray to God for our country. After you vote, pray more.

Dave

*Our fathers’ God, to thee,
Author of Liberty,
To thee we sing;
Long may our land be bright
With freedom’s holy light;
Protect us by thy might, Great God, our King.*

As a woman who has made the commitment to Christ, you are now no longer the master of all your plans. You have surrendered them to God, the Master Planner. A Prisoner and Yet . . . By Corrie TenBoom

When the Nazis overran Holland, Corrie TenBoom, her father and sister, chose to risk death by making their home a haven for refugees. Finally, the Gestapo arrested them. During months in concentration camps, Corrie shared suffering and torture, as she watched her father and sister die. Corrie survived, mind intact and soul still free.

Where did Corrie find the courage & strength to survive. A Prisoner and Yet contains the answer. It reveals a belief in Christ that carried an innocent women through some of the worst agonies man can devise. This book tells one of the most tragic, yet most inspiring and faith-giving true stories of modern times.
