Lenten Bible Study This Risen Existence by Paula Gooder

Paula Gooder is an author and freelance writer as well as an honorary lecturer at the University of Birmingham, Canon Theologian at Birmingham Cathedral, a Reader in the Church of England, and a member of General Synod.

According to Gooder, the theology of resurrection is central not only to what we believe about God and Jesus but also to an understanding of ourselves. In This Risen Existence, she leads us on a biblical exploration of the resurrection accounts in the New Testament. On this journey, we will discover what these narratives tell us about life after death, the end times, and what it means to be a Christian.

Join Sheri Sutton as she leads this 8-week study beginning Wednesday, February 26 in Room 310. Each session will begin at 10:30 am. Call the church office at 692-2282 to register and purchase a book ($9.00 each).

Please read How to Use This Book and the Introduction before the first session.

New Sunday Evening Bible Study Begins February 9

A new study of Romans begins on February 9, at 6:00 pm in Room 310. Led by Dr. Bender, this study will go verse-by-verse through Paul's letter to the Romans to examine what Paul said then and how it applies to us today. Bring your Bibles and grow your faith through the spiritual practice of scripture engagement.

Preparing to Scale the Himalayas

In an effort to grow and expand our thinking, and to give ourselves a common vocabulary, over the last year, the program staff here at First Christian have read several books together. Last year, these included:

- Growing Young (Kara Powell, et. al.)
- Church Unique (Will Mancini)
- Less Clutter, Less Chaos (Kem Meyer)
- The Advantage (Patrick Lencioni)
- Excellence Wins (Horst Schulze)
- Simple Church (Thom Rainer and Eric Geiger)

Currently, we are reading The 4 Disciplines of Execution by Chris McChesney, Sean Covey, and Jim Huling. As we moved into 2020, I thought this book would be helpful to us as we begin to execute on the work of the Vision Team. Already, that is proving to be true as it has given us language and a formula for executing on these priorities.

But as I was reading through this book again, what struck me is how these same principles might be helpful for our spiritual lives as well.

One of the most helpful components identified in The 4 Disciplines of Execution is the notion of the whirlwind. This is what McChesney, et. al., call our “day job.” It is all of those things we have to do to keep the/our operation going on a day-to-day basis. For some, the whirlwind is limited to our professional responsibilities. For others, the whirlwind includes getting kids to dance rehearsal, basketball practice, and to numerous school events. And for others, the whirlwind includes taking care of aging parents and preparing for retirement. Attending to the whirlwind is necessary for survival, but because these things are always urgent, the whirlwind relentlessly captures our time, resources, energy, and attention. It robs us from the focusing on important things.

Nearly every book I’ve read on cultivating and deepening a spiritual discipline suggests that you’ve got to intentionally make time for practice. If you want to deepen your prayer life and your connection with God, you’ve got to find time to pray. If you want to expand your engagement with the Bible, you’ve got to make time to read and reflect upon the scriptures. If you want to develop spiritual friendships, give of yourself in service to others, multiply your generosity, or fuel any component of spiritual growth, you’ve got to make time for it. While we have the best of intentions about doing these things, sometimes the whirlwind also robs us what we need for spiritual development.

One of the challenges for us as followers of Christ is that there are many ways to enhance our relationship with Jesus Christ. For example, developing our spiritual beliefs comes from learning from spiritual guides, both present and throughout history. But which books should we read? Which mentors should we engage with? We could fill four hours a day with reading and thinking about our spiritual beliefs and still not scratch the surface. And while we are working on this, shouldn’t we also be working on our prayer life by reading books on prayer, learning new methods of praying, and actually praying to God? And the same questions could be asked of every other spiritual discipline.

The truth is, all of these are good practices and our efforts to attend to them all are done with noble intentions. But, perhaps, for this season, rather than trying to improve everything all at once, we need to focus. McChesney, et. al., would point out that the first discipline of execution is focusing on the wildly important. This is the idea that by focusing on less, we can achieve more. And, we would all agree that our spiritual lives are wildly important.

So let me give you a place to start. As a part of their work, the Vision Team developed five measures of success when it comes to our mission as a church. These measures of success come from positive answers to these questions:

Am I:

- Growing my faith through daily spiritual practices?
- Strengthening my faith through weekly church involvement?
- Modeling my faith through joyful service and generosity?
- Sharing my faith through intentional investment in others?
- Living my faith through the consistent pursuit of peace?

Again, all of these are important and need our attention. But my suggestion is that for the next month or two, you focus on one of these. Perhaps it is intentionally setting aside time each day for developing a spiritual practice. Maybe, it is committing to being in worship every Sunday without fail. Maybe it is doubling your involvement in service to others. These are just a handful of the ways that you can focus your efforts on what really matters.

In his wonderful book on prayer, Richard Foster begins with a word of counsel:

Healthy prayer necessitates frequent experiences of the common, earthy, run-of-the-mill variety. Like walks, and talks, and good wholesome laughter. Like work in the yard, and chitchat with the neighbors, and washing windows. Like loving our spouse, and playing with our kids, and working with our colleagues. To be spiritually fit to scale the Himalayas of the spirit, we need regular exercise in the hills and valleys of ordinary life.

Just like you don’t become physically fit by doing a month’s worth of workouts all on one day, we don’t become spiritually fit by trying to do everything all at once. Instead, it is a slow, steady journey. And, as the whirlwind of life competes for all of our time and resources, it is important that we focus. Only then, will our spiritual lives be ready for the Himalayas of the spirit that lie in front of us.

New Adult Books In Your Church Library

1. The Love Dare - Stephen Kendrick
Whether your marriage is hanging by a thread or healthy and strong, this 40-day journey (featured in the hit movie, Fireproof) challenges husbands and wives to understand and practice unconditional love. If you desire greater intimacy, friendship and fulfillment in your marriage, let it begin where millions have started. With a dare!
2. A Kiss Is Still a Kiss - Laura Jensen Walker
In A Kiss Is Still a Kiss, author and humorist Laura Jensen Walker takes the "men and women are from different planets" idea and spins it into a unique blend of hang-in-there-anyway marriage tales from her own life as well as the lives of others. Laura's "been there, done that" advice and delightful stories will encourage you, make you laugh, and give you a perfect way to celebrate those moments that make marriage last.
3. For Parents Only, getting inside the head of your kid - Shauti Feldhahn
In this remarkable book, the author take you inside the mind of teens and preteens through the same innovative approach that seized national attention in the best - selling books, For Women Only, For Men Only, and For Young Women Only. They explore the results of a nationwide survey and personal interviews with more than 1,000 real-life teens and tweens to tackle those things parents often don't "get" about their kids. You'll hear first-hand about the longings that drive your kids' seemingly illogical decisions, the truth behind those exasperating "attitude problems" and what your children would tell you if they could trust you to truly listen.

4. Overcomer - Chris Fabry
Based on the motion picture screenplay by Alex and Stephen Kendrick, Overcomer is one of 2019's best inspirational books. In this novel, basketball coach John Harrison's high school team is crushed by the closing of the town's largest employer. Hundreds of families move away, leaving him running a struggling cross-country program. But then he meets Hannah and helps this unlikely runner attempt the impossible in the year's biggest race.
